Doors open at 6:30 PM
Meeting Starts ~ 7:00 PM

VDGIF HEADQUARTERS BUILDING

He has been studying the life-history of the endangered Atlantic sturgeon for eleven years now. The new data collected in the James not only answers important unknown aspects in our area but areas along the fish's entire range. The new information helps restoration efforts in the James. The species appears to be bouncing back very well and is on its way to a strong recovery.

SEPTEMBER PROGRAM – STURGEON RESEARCH UPDATE MATT BALAZIK

Matt Balazik will update us on his continuing research with the Atlantic Sturgeon in the James River and other tributaries of the Chesapeake Bay. Matt's knowledge and expertise in collecting data from actual sturgeon is respected internationally.

Matt has permission to net this ancient species for his research and has extensive information on each of his catches. He tags each sturgeon caught and tracks their local wanderings with special tags which he implants on each specimen he nets. All sturgeon are released. About four years ago, Matt received his PhD from VCU and has spoken internationally about his research.

Matt Releasing Atlantic Sturgeon Taken For Research

During Matt's previous presentation in October, 2014 to the VAC, he reported on the journeys of sturgeon tagging supported by individual VAC Members. Hopefully, these tags are still providing valuable data and Matt will comment on these specific fish.

AUGUST PROGRAM REPORT FLY FISHING FOR FALSE ALBACROE

VAC Members Andrew Campbell and Jay Blankenship always present first class programs. If you missed their “Fly Fishing for False Albacore” program at the August Membership Meeting, you missed another great well illustrated and informative presentation. Plenty of guests were present at the meeting, including some youngsters.

Albacore Fly Fishing Partners Andrew (L) and Jay (R)

Using a on-screen slide show, all you wanted to know about fly fishing for albacore (tackle, fly/lure selection, fishing grounds and how to find, feed, fight and photograph and release this bullet of the sea) was presented.

A Selection of Fly's that False Albacores Cannot Resist

After the talk, Andrew and Jay offered a fly tying demonstration that drew the attention of a good number of attendees.

Military Appreciation Day Saturday, August 25, 2018 By: Carter Clevinger

A good friend of mine, David Johnson, asked if I wanted to join him on his boat to help with a Military Appreciation event by taking the military fishing. The event was held at Willoughby Marina in Hampton, Virginia on August 25, 2018. Of course I accepted, and our crew consisted of David, myself, and three military personnel from the area.

The day before the event on Friday, we fished the third and fourth island to hopefully locate fish for our crew the next day. The weather was perfect, bright and sunny with one foot waves. We casted on a few Cobia, and located a few schools of Spanish/Blues. As we headed back to the marina, with our fresh fish for dinner, we also had a good game plan for our Saturday trip. The NOAA weather forecast for Saturday was calling for east winds 5 to 10 mph. Perfect!

On Saturday morning, we quickly realized the weather had changed, and now we were faced with cloudy skies and winds NE 10 to 15 mph. On the trip over to the marina to pick up our crew, the mouth of the James River was angry with some nice three to four foot waves. As David and I were cruising into the marina, we discussed our plan for the day; do we change our game plan? Possibility of someone becoming seasick? Most important are we going to catch fish because of the rough waters? We docked the boat, completed registration and boarded our crew for the day. We had two men from the Army, and one young man from the Air Force. We had a brief discussion of safety procedures, lifejackets, and the location of the fire extinguisher. Then, I asked with a big grin, "Have you ever been saltwater fishing in the bay before?" One said, I have only fished in freshwater in a Jon boat, and another said I have only fished from a pier in salt water. I looked at my captain, David and said maybe the third island is not a good idea, because of the weather factors we were faced with that morning.

Then, we turned the corner at the HRBT, and started out into the bay, and it was like a dream come true. The birds were diving right in front of us, and I quickly grabbed two trolling rods. Within minutes, we had fish on, and our crew seemed to be fast learners and all took turns reeling in the fish. After the Spanish and Blues stopped feeding, we tried bottom fishing at a few places before heading back to the marina. We all had a great time laughing and telling stories during the day, we were so glad no one became sea sick. When we arrived back to the marina, all of the Military Appreciation festivities were going on; there was BBQ, ice cream, and even a fish cleaning crew to help us clean our fish! This was such a great event; David and I were honored to spend the day with such a great group of guys that serve in our military. I highly recommend volunteering for the Military Appreciation Day!

VIRGINIA MASTER NATURALIST CLASS
(By Steve Knox)

VAC member Steve Knox passes this along. He is a member of the local chapter of the Virginia Master Naturalists. They will hold their annual series of training classes in January and are recruiting potential members.

The Virginia Master Naturalist Program is a statewide corps of volunteers providing education, outreach, and service dedicated to the beneficial management of natural resources and natural areas within Virginia. The program is jointly sponsored by the Dept. of Game and Inland Fisheries, Dept. of Forestry, Dept. of Conservation and Recreation, Virginia Institute of Marine Science's Center for Coastal Resources Management, and several others. The Riverine Chapter of VMN, of which I am a member, serves Hanover, Henrico, the City of Richmond, and northern Chesterfield. We volunteer as educators, citizen scientists, and environmental stewards to help Virginia conserve and manage natural resources and public lands. Our chapter alone last year contributed 5,727 hours of volunteer service.

State VMN website: <http://www.virginiamasternaturalist.org/who-we-are.html>
Riverine Chapter website: <http://www.riverinemn.org/MN12WP/about-us/>

In the past two years, we have attracted more members who are passionate about fishing and hunting and we want that momentum to continue.

To become a certified member you must complete a 13 week training program (starts in January), with classes one night each week. In addition you must complete a specified number of volunteer hours as well as continuing education. The time commitment is a serious one! If you are passionate about the outdoors you will enjoy the classes and the volunteer work, but it is still a lot of time to commit.

The chapter will hold two open houses in October where you may get more information. For details click on the chapter link above, and then click How to Join. We are also trying to get a table at the upcoming Green Top Expo. They are sold out; we are hoping they find us a table. You may email Steve at sknox@knoxmarine.com or call him at 804.840.9460.
